

Exam Assessment Guidelines: ENG1505 British Civilisation

Excellent

This level of answer is convincingly argued and is a perceptive response to the question, based on wide reading of course materials.

- Answers the question directly and effectively.
- Uses a range of examples to support the argument and weighs up and evaluates different specific arguments, distinguishing between them and identifies key issues.
- Has a very high standard of writing and structure, with few technical errors.

Good

Work in this category provides a clearly focused answer and is well argued and supported by a sound and relevant knowledge base and understanding of the subject. Yet, it may be missing a few critical pieces of content or have an argument that is not fully thought out or otherwise vague.

- Is based on a good range of reading.
- Is written in clear, accurate prose.
- Is well structured and makes effective use of examples to support the argument.

Average

Answers in this range show a partial answering of the question, with a solid, but limited, engagement with the subject, and may be rather mechanical in approach (for example, a reliance on description as a substitute for analysis).

- May have a good level of general competency and knowledge, with some use of relevant examples and a limited appreciation of different arguments and interpretations.
- Might also attempt to present an argument, but may offer a blunt analysis and/or show elements of repetition or an overly descriptive approach.

Poor

Answers in this category have a poorly developed argument, based on limited reading and little preparation and study, with an over-reliance on basic source materials, and with a superficial grasp of concepts.

- May lack focus, and be prone to sweeping unsubstantiated assertions, revealing confusion and errors of fact or interpretation.
- Might also have bad structure and multiple spelling errors.
- May only partially answer the question or miss the bigger picture.

Unacceptable

Work in this range may feature inadequate knowledge, characterised by:

- Failure to address the question set including the absence of analysis, insufficient research and evidence, bad organisation and structure, and frequent grammatical and spelling errors.
- May also reflect: insignificant or no argument; superficial response; often irrelevant or tangential discussion.
- It could be inadequately informed; erroneous in matters of fact and interpretation; and/or poorly organised.
