Sources and referencing

It is important that you get familiar with the rules for sources and referencing:

<https://www.hf.uio.no/english/studies/sources-referencing/index.html>

Using other people's material without declaring it properly may be considered as cheating or attempted cheating. The consequences of cheating or attempted cheating may be severe for you as a student, please follow the link for more information:

<https://www.uio.no/english/studies/examinations/sources-citations/>

Students are not expected to make extensive use of sources and should draw on their own understanding of the course content and reading. However, where specific material from sources (e.g. wording or data from textbooks or web materials) is included, short references must be provided in the text, e.g. (Oakland 71) or (parliament.uk). General factual information does not require referencing.

Other writers' words must be placed in quotation marks and followed by one of these references. Avoid non-academic and unofficial websites. A list of any sources used (in simple form; no publication details necessary) should come at the end of each answer, e.g.

- Oakland, British Civilisation
- ons.gov.uk
