

FYS5120 schedule, spring 2020

Anders Kvellestad – anders.kvellestad@fys.uio.no

[v4, updated Apr 1, 2020]

While this course is a self-study course, we will hold (semi-)weekly discussion sessions for those interested. In general we will have these sessions on Fridays 11.15–13.00, but due to holidays and travels we will some weeks shift this to Thursday 12.15–14.00. There will also be one overview lecture on Friday March 6, 14.15–16.00 (note the special time). Unless otherwise noted, we'll use room Ø358. Update: Since the University is closed due to the coronavirus situation, we have temporarily moved our discussion sessions online. We're using Zoom, with the following meeting details:

- Link: <https://uio.zoom.us/j/628517508>
- Meeting ID: 628 517 508

Please note that the discussion sessions are intended to be precisely that – it will not be me lecturing or reviewing exercises. It will be based on the questions that you bring, related to that week's part of the syllabus, as indicated in the schedule below. The idea is that everyone should engage in the discussion and together we try to answer the questions that arise. After all, trying to explain the things you've understood to others is one of the best ways to learn – and one of the best ways to prepare for the oral exam. Some weeks we will probably end the session early if there is not much to discuss, while other weeks we might go a bit over time.
